

Nature's Creativity – Artist Statement

My painting shows the beauty of nature and the struggle it is having with global warming and human intervention. I used various shades of purple to demonstrate creativity as nature is constantly progressing and changing; with each death there is regrowth and a new creation. The shades of yellow and white show the warming of the earth, the water and the sky as human activity contributes to climate change. As the earth is impacted by the human footprint, its ability to create gets weaker and weaker and the depth of the creative colour seeps away.
